Full Probe Of Far East Policies Being Demanded

Price Probes Start

OPS Officials Check Columbus

WASHINGTON, April 17—Widespread investigations, which may affect the pocketbooks of every consumer, are underway today into reported price violations on food, automobiles and scrap steel.

The investigations are centered in Columbus, Chicago, Kansas City, Houston, Dallas, Omaha and some areas of New Jersey.

Office of Price Stabilization officials sent teams of enforcement officers into those cities from Washington to aid local investigators.

OPS refused to divulge further details of the probe, but it was learned that meat violations are part of the food probe.

An authoritative source said beef livestock quotas are being "ignored" by some slaughterers and that there have been technical violations of the general price freeze in beef sales.

IN ONE CASE, the source said, a new cut—a "frisket" of beef—has been developed. A new cut may be sold for a higher price under terms of the general ceiling price regulation. A "frisket," the official said, is sliced from a brisket of beef, a standard cut.

Last Sunday was the deadline for livestock slaughterers to obtain OPS registration numbers. A slaughterer not registered by then will be prohibited from operating. OPS officials said they do not yet have complete reports showing the total number who registered.

Slaughterers who have received their registration numbers must mark or stamp it on each carcass of meat.

The marking provision applies to all kinds of meat—beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork—though beef is the only livestock under a slaughtering quota this month. Quotas for the others will be announced later.

OPS officials yesterday changed their timetable for issuing orders setting dollar-and-cent ceilings on beef from the slaughterer to the meat counter.

Arval Erickson, assistant director of the food and restaurant division, said the orders will come out the "last part of this week." The regulations originally were slated for announcement today.

Jury Is Seated For Trial Of Congressman

Prosecuting and defense attorneys Tuesday were outlining their cases in the hearing against Dr. Walter Brehm, congressman from this district who is accused of receiving "kickbacks" from office aides.

Brehm, whose case is being heard in federal court in the nation's capital, is leaving his fate up to a jury of two women and ten men.

The government won the first legal skirmish when the court agreed to hear evidence that Brehm made employes promise to "kickback" part of their salaries to him.

His attorneys argued unsuccessfully that "contributions" made prior to 1947 should not be mentioned at the trial because the statute of limitations has run out.

Mrs. Clara Soliday, 75, widowed former clerk in Brehm's office; her son Raymond, and her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, all of Washington, were to take the stand to support the government's charges.

Columbus OKs Anti-Slots Law

COLUMBUS, April 17—Ohio's capital has a new anti-slot machine ordinance today providing stiff penalties for those who assemble, repair or store the slots "knowingly. . .for financial gain."

The Columbus city council last night approved the new law which sets up a fine of $500 for commercial operators convicted on a first offense. Convictions on subsequent offenses would carry fines of up to $1,000 and 11 months in jail.

EMPLOYES of San Francisco's St. Francis hotel, Ruth Redell and Roy Trundell, check over the giant five-star flag that will be flown during the stay of Gen. and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur and their son, Arthur. The city was planning a hero's welcome for the general who is due to arrive Tuesday night.

FRISCO IS ALL READY

Nation Busting Buttons To Show Mac Big Welcome

America is busting its buttons to show Gen. Douglas MacArthur a rip-roaring welcome worthy of a hero's homecoming.

From San Francisco's Golden Gate to the narrows of New York Bay, a series of official welcomes, parades, and booming salutes are being prepared on an unprecedented scale.

Things get off to a roaring welcome when the 71-year-old general lands Tuesday night in San Francisco through whose harbor he last sailed in the Spring of 1937, Manila-bound with his bride.

To the thunder of a five star general's 17-gun salute MacArthur will again set foot on the soil of Continental U. S., but ceremonies at International Airport will be held to a minimum and the general and his party will motor to their hotel with a heavy police escort running interference through a mass of reporters, photographers, newsreel, radio and TV men.

WEDNESDAY MORNING will really be MacArthur Day for San Francisco with the opening of the city's formal ceremonies at 12:45 p. m. (EST).

Accompanied by Gov. Earl Warren, MacArthur will receive a cheering, ticker-tape welcome from an expected million Californians as he rides through the city to formal ceremonies at City Hall.

But the MacArthurs will not be able to tarry to enjoy the warm Western hospitality. They will go directly from the City Hall reception to the warmed-up and waiting "Bataan" which will speed them on to the nation's capital.

The non-stop ten to ten-and-one-half hour flight across the nation is expected to have them in their beds in Washington's Statler hotel late Wednesday night.

But despite the late hour, the former United Nations supreme commander will be given the full celebrity treatment when his plane touches down at National Airport. Defense Secretary Marshall and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be on hand to greet him.

But the man who is responsible for the general's triumphant homecoming—President Truman—will not be there though he has given official White House approval to celebration plans by authorizing a reception.

HE ALSO DIRECTED all government departments and agencies to dismiss from duty Thursday afternoon all employes whose duties can be suspended.

More than a million Washingtonians are expected to crowd the parade route along broad Pennsylvania Avenue—the traditional route of the Presidents—as the MacArthur entourage sweeps by.

But this number will be a mere handful compared to the vast audience that will hear and see the general's 12:30 p. m. (EST) address to the joint meeting of the House and Senate, thanks to the modern wonders of radio and television that will provide a gallery seat to every American.

Meantime, New York, where welcoming heros is such a tradition that one man has virtually made a fulltime job out of directing it, will be scrubbing its civic face in anticipation of the general's arrival at Idlewild Airport at 5:30 p. m. (EST) Thursday.

On hand to greet him will be the city's official greeter, dapper, graying Grover Whalen, whose glad-handing career began during the late Mayor Jimmy Walker's regime, and a small group of officials.

But Friday, beginning at 11 a. m. (EST), is MacArthur Day with four million New Yorkers expected to crowd the welcome parade up Broadway after a reception at City Hall which will end at the Waldorf Astoria for a formal luncheon that will mark the end of the official reception.

More than 10,000 persons from veterans and city organizations are expected to lead the general in the parade up the famed gay white way through a swirling "snowstorm" of ticker-tape and confetti which have long been the trademark of the New York welcome.

Mac Ready To Wing To States After Colorful Hawaiian Fete

HONOLULU, April 17 — Gen. Douglas MacArthur prepared to complete his homeward flight through fair skies to the United States today after a 35-hour stay in Honolulu where he received the biggest welcome in Hawaii's colorful history.

Together with his wife, their 13-year-old son, Arthur, and a group of aides, the five-star general takes off for San Francisco to end an absence of 14 eventful years from the homeland he served for half a century.

Throngs of Honolulans poured out acclaim to MacArthur as he made a triumphal two-hour tour of the city, during which he laid a wreath at the national cemetery, paying homage to thousands of American war dead.

The solemn wreath-laying took place near Pearl Harbor where Japan's surprise attack plunged America into World War II and launched MacArthur upon the greatest campaigns of his long military career.

AFTER PAYING this tribute to the Americans who met what he called the "glory of their deaths" for their country, MacArthur received with "deep appreciation" an honorary doctorate from the University of Hawaii.

So strenuous was the tumultuous greeting given MacArthur that the 71-year-old general napped for an hour after a 25-mile auto tour of Honolulu. He and his family are guests of Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet.

Following dinner last evening, MacArthur gathered his confidential aides about him at his temporary Honolulu residence

5 CRIMINAL CASES ON PANEL DOCKET

County's Grand Jury Opens Session; Judge Defines Gambling In Detail

The April grand jury was called into session Tuesday to consider at least five criminal cases—and to investigate whatever gambling may exist in Pickaway County.

In his charge to the jury Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff defined gambling" in detail and explained existing laws against it.

The traditional short charge to the jury was expanded by Judge Radcliff to include the definitive talk on gambling.

In the traditional charge common pleas judges in Ohio are required by statute to call upon the grand jury to inquire into "bucket shop" or "marginal gambling" activities. This despite the fact that such activities have long since passed into history.

A bucket shop is an office or place where bets are made in the form of orders or options based on current exchange prices of securities or commodities, the catch being that there is no actual buying or selling of the property, stocks or grains.

In short, bucket shop operations are wagers, and the maintaining of a bucket shop is made an offense by statute in Ohio.

In connection with the grand jury gambling probe, County Prosecutor Guy Cline has instructed Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Circleville Police Chief William McCrady to produce all evidence and witnesses having any bearing on the probe before the jury.

Cline said he hoped private citizens also may wish to testify before the panel.

He added that the jury probably will not complete its work before Wednesday.

Courthouse observers believed the jury would go through the five criminal cases before it delved into other business—this to include aspects of gambling.

Only one person on the original list of grand jurors was unable to serve. Mable Boone of Ashville Route 2 was dismissed because of illness. She was replaced by Martha Ebenhack of Circleville Route 2.

In his charge to the grand jury Judge Radcliff said:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the grand jury, we now must consider the question of commercial gambling.

"At the present the entire nation is aroused about the apparent link between the underworld and persons in high political office.

"The strength of the underworld seems to be the wealth that it controls, and the source of that wealth is gambling.

"The act of gambling, in and of itself, is in the field of morals and we all know that we cannot legislate good morals for the citizens of any political unit.

"When gambling is operated on a commercial scale and for profit to the operators and certain persons with less will power than others lose their pay and thus deprive their families of food and clothing, society, is forced to assume the burden of supporting these families.

"Then gambling loses its identity as a moral issue and becomes a social problem, a problem concerning which it is proper to pass laws.

"The State of Ohio has done this. The constitution of this state prohibits forever lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets for any purpose.

"In addition to this constitutional prohibition the legislature has passed from time to time laws on the subject.

"The early statutes on the subject of gaming or gambling prohibit the act itself—that is, wagering for money or anything of value.

"This even includes the matching of a coin for a cup of coffee. In recent years, however, the trend in these laws indicates that the legislative intent is to control and prevent commercial gambling.

"The 'numbers game' or 'policy' is made a serious offense by name in separate statutes. All current anti-gambling laws make the bonus of the crime the doing of the act for 'profit' or 'for ones own gain.'

"This shows that the legislature of this state is realistic and is leaving the field of morals and is legislating in the proper sphere.

"Commercial gambling that takes food from the mouths of children and clothing from their backs is the criminal activity that should be scrutinized by you as grand jurors.

"Keep in mind the foregoing instruction and explanation if you decide there is in Pickaway County gambling which demands your attention and investigation."

Last month Prosecutor Cline issued an order to law enforcement officers in the county to clamp down on commercial gambling, including bingo games, slot machines, punch boards and the numbers racket.

The federal Bureau of Internal Revenue has reported that 24 slot machines exist in Pickaway County.

Grand Jury Directs Raids

NEWARK, April 17—A series of successful gambling raids yesterday climaxed the first day of the April grand jury to consider charges of gambling in Newark.

The Rev. O. F. Gibbs, pastor of Memorial Evangelical United Brethren church and foreman of the jury, directed a fleet of police cruisers in raids on eight gambling places.

A quantity of gambling equipment, mostly connected to the numbers racket, was seized. One haul included 525,000 number writing slips.

800 NOTES TO BE SCANNED

Congressmen's Letters To RFC To Be Inspected

WASHINGTON, April 17—The Senate Banking Committee today gave its approval for an inspection of letters congressmen wrote to the Reconstruction Finance Corp. on behalf of government borrowers.

Chairman Maybank, (D) S. C., said that the committee unanimously agreed the letters should be looked at.

Chairman Fulbright, (D) Ark., of the Senate "influence" investigators, will inspect the letters.

Theodore Herz, a member of Fulbright's staff, announced that the letters—some 800 in number—will be secured at once from the RFC and that a "preliminary screening will begin. He said the work might be done at RFC headquarters.

The banking committee also decided to begin hearings next Tuesday on legislation to reform or abolish the RFC.

EX-PRESIDENT Hoover and Jesse Jones, former RFC head, were invited to appear as the first witnesses.

In addition, the committee gave its approval to Fulbright's plan to set a definite day for the appearance at an open hering of Presidential Aide Donald Dawson, who has been charged with being a member of an "influence ring" in the government loan field.

Chairman Maybank, (D) S.C., called today's meeting soon after Fulbright announced his intention to examine the letters as a result of President Truman's reported charge that they show pressure on RFC.

Ohio GOP Fiscal Policy Is Seen In Legislature

COLUMBUS, April 17—A fiscal policy of the Republican majority—an absolute "must" which needs agreement between house and senate before the legislature can go much further with its work—may evolve from this week's sessions of the Ohio General Assembly.

Details of the policy reportedly have been worked out, but must be confirmed by a senate caucus before they can be announced officially. A caucus of Senate republicans was called for last Thursday, but was so poorly attended that Majority Leader Roscoe Walcutt (R-Columbus) refused to consider it representative of his membership.

However, it was learned that the policy approved by the house GOP as well as by leaders of both chambers included:

1. An overall increase of $22 million in state aid to schools over the $181 million allocated two years ago;

2. Retain state aid to local governments at $18 million a year, including, however, the

British Sub Feared Lost

LONDON, April 17—The British submarine Affray, believed to be carrying 75 officers and men, was missing today and officially listed as "possibly sunk" on a routine diving test in the English Channel.

The admiralty estimated that if the Affray is on the seabed, the men aboard could live for 48 hours with the usual supply of oxygen and compressed air provided the submarine is undamaged.

Yankee Starts Hunger Strike

DACCA, Pakistan, April 17—An American photographer, Edward Levonian, is staging a hunger strike today outside the office of the Indian high commissioner.

Levonian decided on the strike as a protest against a delay in his being granted a visa for travel in India.

Eichelberger Gives Views

CLEVELAND, April 17 — Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, retired Eighth Army commander, believes the Nationalist forces should be held in reserve as a threat against the Chinese mainland.

Eichelberger, emphasizing that he was not taking sides for or against his old boss, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said:

"I am not convinced we ought to use Chiang Kai-shek's troops in Korea now. We ought to arm and equip the Nationalists, but they should be kept as a threat against the Chinese mainland."

MacArthur's Address Set For Thursday

WASHINGTON, April 17—Senate Republicans decided today to ask for creation of a 24-man Senate-House committee to investigate Far Eastern policies which led to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ouster and their relations to world affairs.

The strategy agreed upon by the Senate GOP Policy Committee calls for Sen. Ferguson, (R) Mich., to introduce a resolution calling for the probe. Ferguson said he would move for immediate action.

Meanwhile, congressional leaders of both parties agreed that MacArthur's address Thursday will raise the curtain on a full investigation of U. S. military and foreign policy.

MacArthur is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow night and will speak to a joint meeting of Congress at 12:30 p. m. (EST) Thursday. A rousing civic reception will follow his address.

THE RESOLUTION by Ferguson does not mention MacArthur by name, but authorized the committee of 12 Senate and 12 House members to make a "complete evaluation of the United States policies in the Far East and their relation to foreign and military policies of the United States as a whole."

Two members of each party from the Appropriations, Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees of each house would be named to the joint committee.

Republicans invited MacArthur to express his views not only on the Korean war and the Far East crisis but on the world situation generally.

Senate Majority Leader McFarland, (D) Ariz., declared his full backing of an all-out foreign-military policy probe. He said that "I don't care how we do it, just so we do it."

The Senate Armed Services Committee, in a prelude to MacArthur's appearance, opens a new investigation of military policy tomorrow with Defense Secretary Marshall as the first witness.

Should President Truman desire to answer MacArthur's congressional address, he can do so almost immediately. Mr. Truman is to address the American Society of Newspaper Editors at 2 p. m. Thursday.

Editors attending the society's annual meeting in Washington are showing an almost unanimous desire to hear MacArthur's speech to the Senate and House.

RED AMMO DUMP BLASTED

General Advance Is Made By UN Against Communists

TOKYO, April 18—(Wednesday)—Two American tank-infantry task forces drove into North Korea Tuesday to spark a general United Nations advance all along the western and central battle fronts.

A censored dispatch said one of the armored columns destroyed a Chinese Communist artillery and mortar dump which Allied officers said held about 700 tons of ammunition.

Elsewhere along the front, UN forces advanced almost without opposition

One Allied officer reported that he believed the Reds were withdrawing to a new defense line closer to Chorwon, a west-central front bastion 17 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Censors withheld details of the UN advances and front dispatches failed to pinpoint developments.

The enemy continued to carry out secret troops movements under cover of a smoke screen which was particularly heavy in the Pikhan reservoir area of the central front.

Allied patrols waded across the Pukhan river Tuesday night west of the huge dam at the end of the 15-mile artificial lake and encountered light small arms fire from enemy positions.

The enemy appeared determined to defend the dam itself which controls the flow of water in the Pukhan river leading southwest to Seoul.

Two Allied patrols attempted to reach the dam but were turned back by enemy fire.

Red soldiers set thousands of small brush fires along the front sending up a smoke haze that obscured ground action for Allied air spotters and fighter-bombers.

As Allied forces sought out enemy defensive positions, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new UN supreme commander, expressed "unbounded faith" in the ability of his troops.

Allied intelligence officers, attempting to puzzle out Red tactics, were not sure whether enemy troops were withdrawing or preparing for a long anticipated counter-offensive.

Police Alerted For Bank Thugs

COLUMBUS, April 17—Alerted Columbus police are looking today for a pair of "armed and dangerous" Guernsey Countians wanted in connection with the $4,969 holdup early this month of a Lower Salem bank.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation warned yesterday that the two, identified as Donald Eugene Morrow, 23-year-old Cambridge barber, and Frank Raymond Waers, 20-year-old Byesville laborer, may be in the Columbus area.

UN Council May Get 'Peace' Offer

LAKE SUCCESS, April 17—The Communist "peace offer" from North Korea may be placed before the UN Security Council today by Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik as part of the Russian propaganda battle against the United States.

Official observers believe that the Peiping broadcasts and North Korean communication—95 percent of which consisted of atrocity accusations against the U. S. in the Korean fighting—may be the prelude to a Russian drive for a five-power conference on Far East issues.

Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has been concentrating in Paris on demands for a five-power conference to settle basic international issues, including Korea and Formosa. The five powers would be Russia, Communist China, the United States, Britain and France.

Advices from the Far East received at UN indicate that the North Koreans, in addition to sending their memorandum to Lake Success, launched a drive for signatures to peace petitions. The Peiping radio joined the chorus, leaving the impression that a new Communist peace offensive is underway.

It was recalled that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky repeatedly introduced resolutions in the UN General Assembly for a five-power peace conference including Red China. Three times the assembly tossed Vishinsky's resolutions out.

In the meantime, the three-man Good Offices Committee headed by Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam will study the North Korean communication to determine whether it embodies an implied answer to recent UN overtures for peace talks.

The North Korean "peace offer" laid down the rule that a peaceful settlement can be achieved in Korea on Communist terms only, which the UN has repeatedly rejected as unacceptable.

the House chamber for the historic occasion.

Thus it was apparent that within the space of two hours Mr. Truman and the general he ousted will be talking to the same men.

MacArthur's subsequent appearances on Capitol Hill will be scheduled later. It is at these sessions that the Republicans are pressing for a full review of national military and foreign policies.

The general has said he would be glad to meet the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee. GOP leaders are pressing for expansion of this meeting to include members of other Senate committees as well.

A note of caution was injected by Sen. Aiken, (R) Vt., who said that Republicans generally do not now "want to go off half-cocked until we know the facts." He said any "rash or impulsive action"—like trying to launch an impeachment action against President Truman—is out until the evidence is in.

A conference of all Senate Republicans authorized Sen. Taft's policy committee to draft a resolution calling for a broad investigation of both foreign affairs as well as military policies anywhere in the world.

SEN. CAIN, (R) Wash., who said he would offer a resolution today calling for a declaration of war against Red China, was invited to appear before Taft's group.

But it was made plain that neither Cain's idea nor any move toward impeachment will be considered seriously until "the facts are in."

Sen. Russell, (D) Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, told reporters he generally would favor "leaving such things to the standing committees except in extraordinary circumstances."

Taft said it would be possible for Russell's committee to do the job, but added:

"I'm afraid that committee would focus on whether General MacArthur was obeying orders rather than what the policy should be."

Driver Unhurt As Auto Rolls Off Route 56

A 29-year-old Circleville Route 3 man escaped injuries late Monday when his auto went out of control on a curve and rolled over.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said the mishap occurred at about 11:30 p. m. Monday on Route 56, about a half mile north of Route 104.

The patrolman identified the driver as Jay Timmons, who lost control of his auto on a small curve at the Marvin Routt farm.

Wells said the Timmons car careened to the left side of the road, then whipped back to the right, plunging through a farm fence and overturning.

Cops' First Aid Kit Is Full-- Of Sympathy

If you should happen to suffer a small cut while shopping in downtown Circleville, don't run into the police department to seek treatment.

About the only thing the city cops will be able to offer is sympathy.

Only first aid equipment available to the men on duty in the police station is contained in a small and very dusty cardboard box.

Brushing away the dust, two bottles bearing the labels "tincture of metaphen" and "tincture of merthiolate" are visible, along with a third bottle, unlabelled.

All three bottles are bone dry.

accused of receiving contributions from Mrs. Soliday for his campaign in 1948. Mrs. Emma S. Craven, another clerk in Brehm's office, claims she donated money in 1948.

Each of the seven counts in the indictment carries a maximum penalty of three years and prison and $5,000 fine.

A practicing dentist in Logan for 25 years, Brehm has spent five terms in Congress.

The jury was sworn in Monday afternoon after the defense had used challenges to remove nine persons from the jury box. Only one defense challenge remained when Defense Attorney Leo A. Rover announced he was "content."

Two alternate jurors, both men, then were seated.

After the jury was picked, U. S. District Judge Burnita Shelton Matthews adjourned the trial until Tuesday.

The government's principal witnesses will be Mrs. Soliday liday, of Logan, and Mrs. Emand Mrs. Craven, who allegedly gave Brehm a total of $1380 in campaign contributions in 1947 and 1948.

He was indicted under the Corrupt Practices Act. This makes it unlawful for a political candidate to receive campaign gifts from government employes. Both women formerly worked in Brehm's office.

There are no government workers on the jury.

Rover asked that all government employes on the panel be excused from serving on the jury, and the prosecution agree to this.

Farm Brings $280 An Acre

A small farm located near Robtown sold in public auction Saturday for more than $280 per acre.

The farm involved was a 35.70-acre tract of the Anna Heeter estate. The sale was handled by Circleville Attorney Charles May.

Sale of the 35.70 acre farm and its buildings brought a total of $10,100, May said. Purchase was made by I. A. Fausnaugh of the Robtown community.

"The farm is the size which is attractive to a lot of people," May said in explaining the large purchase price. "The house is a good one, and the outbuildings are in good shape."

Authority for the sale was granted under the will of Anna Heeter through Pickaway County probate court.

overlooking Pearl Harbor where the 1941 sneak attack sent him into action that ended with the defeat of Japan.

With his close subordinates around him, the general continued preparation of the momentous address he will deliver before Congress within two days.

One of his highest aides said the general will "hold his fire" until he appears before the assembled senators and representatives in Washington to deliver his tensely-awaited statement.

This ruled out an earlier report that MacArthur might utter some hard-hitting remarks during the vast civic reception prepared for him in San Francisco.

Any talk he makes in San Francisco is therefore expected to be of a perfunctory nature, probably voicing his joy at his return to his native country from 14 years of military service abroad.

QUARTERS CLOSE to MacArthur reported he is determined to spare no punches in laying before Congress his side of the controversy climaxed last Wednesday when President Truman relieved the general of all his four Far Eastern commands.

These sources said MacArthur feels that his removal from his top command posts has left him free to speak openly on the issue of how best to halt the Communist threat in the Orient.

The general was authoritatively represented as being particularly anxious to convince the American people that his actions, statements and communiques lay within the scope of his military commands.

5 Musicians To Vie For State Honors

Circleville high school will be represented by a group of five musicians Saturday in Ohio Wesleyan university during a statewide instrumental adjudication contest.

Director Truman Eberly said the lads, who received "superior" ratings in a district adjudication contest last month in Lancaster, will be seeking "superior" ratings in Saturday's statewide contest.

The adjudications are conducted as an audition, with ratings of "superior," "excellent" and "very good" being awarded. No individual is singled out for special recognition as the "best."

Participating in the Saturday state contest will be James Bartholomew, trumpet soloist; Charles Magill, trombone soloist; and the brass quartet, consisting of Bartholomew and Don Metzler, trumpets, and Magill and Bob Chalfin, trombones. Accompanist will be Warren Leist.

Meanwhile, CHS girls will receive a similar testing May 12 in Otterbein college during statewide vocal adjudications.

Expected to participate in the vocal contests are Beverly Reid, alto voice soloist; and the girls' triple trio, consisting of Miss Reid, Margaret Green, Nancy Waple, Jacqueline Smith, Theresa Hill, Eleanor Lewis, Dorothy Lampson, Beatrice Bass and Marjorie Thornton. Patty Shellhammer is expected to accompany the vocal selections.

The appointment of Joseph K. LaFontaine as office manager was recently announced by E.G. Grigg, manager of the Circleville Lamp Works of General Electric.

LaFontaine, who transferred from the accounting department at Nela Park in Cleveland, replaces H. W. Diehl who becomes general lamp manufacturing foreman.

A graduate of Boston university and a reserve officer in the Airforce, LaFontaine joined General Electric in 1948 as an auditor at East Boston lamp works. He transferred to cost analysis work at East Cleveland lamp works the following year and joined the home office auditing staff in 1950.

Diehl, one of the original members of the Circleville staff, will take over his duties as general foreman May 1. He replaces E. G. Shutt who is transferring to Bucyrus lamp works.

cities' share of the last biennium's surplus;

3. $3 million from general revenue funds to provide a minimum $25 weekly award for all who are receiving permanent total disability payments under workmen's compensation laws, regardless of the date of their injury;

4. $6 millions to provide a "cost-of-living" increase to retired public employes and teachers who went off active duty prior to 1947;

5. $10 millions to increase the maximum old age pension monthly grant from $55 to $60, and

6. House passage of the senate-approved Mechem bill amending the sales tax law to provide the funds to take care of the above increases where they exceed the figures in Governor Lausche's $729 million budget.

Sheriff's Office Collecting Punch Boards Here

Sheriff Charles Radcliff has "a whole cabinet full" of punchboards to prove there's a ban against the devices in Pickaway County.

The sheriff said the punchboards, "about 10 or 12," were confiscated in the last three weeks. However, no affidavits have been filed against the owners.

"But we're picking up any punchboard we see," he added. "There's a ban on the things, and we mean to enforce it.'

The sheriff declared war on punchboards shortly after County Prosecutor Guy Cline issued an edict against commercial gambling last month. At that time Radcliff said:

"Punchboards are worse than bingo any day, because kids play the things. Kids will lay down their pennies on punchboards, where they won't on bingo games."

The comparison with bingo had reference to a ban placed on such games by Cline.

Eight Inactive Divorce Cases Dismissed Here

Eight inactive divorce cases have been dismissed in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The cases are part of approximately 300 cases on the docket. The eight cases were filed in the period between July, 1944, and August, 1948.

Some of the inactive cases on the docket have been pending since the late 1920s.

Under the rules of practice set up for Pickaway common pleas court, "all cases in which no action has been taken for three or more consecutive terms of court may be dismissed at the next or any succeeding term for want of prosecution.

"Such dismissal may be had upon motion of counsel for any of the parties or by the court upon its own motion. This dismissal will be complete and the case will be permanently dropped from the files."

Judge William D. Radcliff said none of the eight dismissed cases were dropped by the court under the rule. The cases, all divorce actions, are as follows:

Addie Mae Bennett against Mitchell Samuel Bennett, filed in July, 1944.

Stella D. Camp against Willis W. Camp, filed in August, 1947.

Eloise White Oyler against Carl Edward Oyler, filed in October, 1947.

Doris Catherine Jackson against Stanley R. Jackson, filed in November, 1947.

Paul E. Sines against Mary L. Sines, filed in February, 1948.

Dulcey Whaley against Joseph Raymond Whaley, filed in June, 1948.

Anne L. Spangler against Foster H. Spangler, filed in August, 1948.

Mary M. Johnson against George L. Johnson Jr., filed in August, 1948.

Eight 'Bodies' Found In Cellar

A Circleville gas company man entered a North Court street home early Tuesday and discovered eight decomposed bodies in the cellar.

City policemen were not summoned, however, although the city service department was requested to remove the corpses.

Frank Marion of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. office in Circleville entered the home early Tuesday to reopen the gas lines.

Marion said he noticed a "terrible stench" on entering the cellar and investigated. His investigation revealed the bodies of eight wild rabbits which apparently had been in the cellar for some time.

Marion said the rabbits were found in the cellar of the Mrs. W. T. Ulm home, 531 North Court street. The house has been closed all Winter.

The gas man added that the hapless bunnies apparently had tried to chew their way out of the cellar. He said that a door was gnawed about halfway through.

HAS WHOLE PLACE GONE MAD?

Alice Seeks Some Light In 'Wonderland, D.C.'

(Editor's Note: The following article originally appeared in Sunday's New York Times. It was written by James (Scotty) Reston, crack Pulitzer Prize-winning Washington correspondent for the Times).

By JAMES RESTON

"In that direction," said the (Cheshire) Cat, waving its right paw round, "lives a Hatter; and in that direction," waving the other paw, "lives a March Hare. Visit either you like: they're both mad."

"But I don't want to go among mad people" Alice remarked.

"Oh, you can't help that," said the Cat. "We're all mad here. . . ."—From "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland."

WASHINGTON, April 17—The Mad Hatter was sitting on the big black couch in the Senate press gallery this morning when Miss Alice walked in.

Alice: Why is everybody here out of sorts with everybody else?

Hatter: It's the war, child. The Chinese are killing our soldiers in Korea. The Russians are threatening our friends all over Asia and Europe, so the Republicans are naturally angry with the Democrats and the Democrats are angry wit' the Republicans. Surely you understand that?

Alice: No, I don't think I do. For if our men are being killed and our countries threatened, everybody should be working together.

Hatter: The Supreme Commander's been dismissed. That's what disturbs and divides us. Man by the name of MacArthur. Great general.

Alice: Oh, dear, that is a pity! But if he was really the "supreme" commander, who could dismiss him?

Hatter: It's the Constitution, Miss! The Supreme Commander in this country is not really "supreme." The "supreme" commander is the Commander in Chief. That is President Truman, and he has an absolute right to dismiss General MacArthur if the general is not carrying out his orders.

Alice: Wasn't he carrying out the President's orders?

Hatter: Apparently not, so under the Constitution, the President replaced him.

Alice: Then why are the Republicans angry? Don't they believe in the Constitution?

Hatter: Of course they do. The Republican party is the party of Abraham Lincoln and Senator Taft. It is devoted to the Constitution. Anybody knows that. It prides itself in the conservation of great principles of Government procedure. If you had been here earlier you wouldn't have to ask. For four months the Republicans fought in the troops-to-Europe debate for the constitutional principle of civilian control of the military. Good show, too!

Alice: Then what made them change so quickly? If they wanted civilian control of the military for four months, why don't they want civilian control of General MacArthur now?

(This young woman is taking a decidedly un-American attitude, thought the Mad Hatter.)

Alice: And why, if things are so serious, couldn't the Commander in Chief and the Supreme Commander get together?

Hatter: This naive confidence in reason is entirely out of the question. General MacArthur was 7,000 miles away. He had a war to direct. He had communiques to write and cablegrams from correspondents to answer and Senators to receive, and trips to far-off places such as Formosa to make.

Alice: When was he back here last?

Hatter: In 1937.

Alice: I'm sorry, but I don't see why, if the President had the power to dismiss him, he didn't have the power to order him home for a little chat. Does the President always dismiss men who are naughty?

Hatter: Certainly not! But he always dismisses men who are naughty to him.

Alice: What do the Republicans think he should do?

Hatter: You must simply read the statements of Senators Taft and Wherry and Representative Martin. The one from Massachusets. They're all in the papers.

Alice: That's precisely what confuses me.

Hatter: Now see here. Here is a detailed account of a speech by Senator Taft at the Yale Club Thursday night. No Yale man would seek to deceive another Yale man. The speech is entirely clear. The Senator says the war in Korea has "no purpose whatsoever." He points out that the influence of freedom in the Far East can be built up only by the believers in freedom among the Far Eastern powers themselves. And Senator Wherry says . . .

Alice: Just a minute, please. Senator Taft also says in that same speech that he favors extending the Korean war to China. If it has no purpose, why make it bigger?

Hatter: The way to end a war is to end it. Bomb the "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria, I say!

Alice: Wouldn't that make the Communists cross? And wouldn't they then bomb our "privileged sanctuary" in Japan? I am confused about all this. The only advantage I can see in the whole thing is that we must be stronger than the Russians now.

Hatter: What do you mean stronger than the Russians now? We are far weaker. They can take Korea or Japan or Western Europe anytime they like. We won't be strong enough to deal with them for fifteen months or two years.

Alice: Then why do we want to provoke them now? If we are silly enough to risk a big war, why not wait a couple of years?

Hatter: Confound it, because these little untidy wars are the very mischief! Partial war, partial peace, partial controls, partial mobilization, total inflation, total fiddlesticks! Appeasement's the trouble. That's what causes the confusion. When you get into any kind of war you must use all the power you have; otherwise you're an appeaser!

Alice: I suppose that's what we should have done with the Russians when they blockaded Berlin and with the Yugoslavs when they shot down the American planes, and the. . .

Hatter: Don't make foolish remarks. Korea is not Berlin and Communist China is not Yugoslavia. . . .

Alice: Wouldn't it be nice if they were?

Hatter: Appeasement is what we were talking about. Mr. Wherry charges the Truman Administration with appeasement. So does Mr. Taft. So does Mr. Martin. They want an end of this slaughter in Korea. They want a second front in South China. They want to cut our losses and they want peace and unconditional surrender. And no more nonsense! What more could you ask?

Alice: A little common sense wouldn't hurt! And, incidentally, whatever happened to the United Nations?

Hatter: The United Nations is a failure. Senator Taft said so Thursday night. He said. . . .

Alice: Could I please have a drink of water? . . .There! . . .Now, let us begin at the beginning. And you correct me when I'm wrong. There is a war going on in Korea.

Hatter: Right.

Alice: The Chinese Communists and the North Korean Communists are on one side (with the Russian Communists just behind) and fourteen members of the United Nations have troops fighting on the other side.

Hatter: Right.

Alice: Western Europe is more important than Korea.

Hatter: General MacArthur said. . .

Alice: Excuse me, Western Europe is more important than Korea! And Western Europe is also threatened by Communist aggression, right?

Hatter: Right. But Western Europe can hardly live without Southeast Asia.

Alice: So both Europe and Asia have to be protected.

Hatter: Right.

Alice: The United States is not the United Nations.

Hatter: Half-right.

Alice: If we keep going as we are in Korea, things could go on like this for years. But if we put in a lot more men and bomb Manchuria, maybe the Chinese and the Russians would quit.

Hatter: Right.

Alice: But maybe they wouldn't, too. Maybe they'd take Japan or Western Europe. Isn't that the rub?

Hatter: You're a persistent and tedious child. You want growing and learning. The Orientals love aggressive, resolute an dynamic leadership. General MacArthur said so last year.

Alice: I'm sorry. I just thought maybe little wars were better than big wars. Do all the soldiers agree with MacArthur on fighting in Manchuria and putting Asia first?

Hatter: Agree? Soldiers fight, they don't agree. Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Bradley all think Europe is more important than Asia. But, of course, they've been tainted by experience.

Alice: Just the same, the Republicans are backing MacArthur.

Hatter: Well, not precisely. You see, they want to take advantage of all the fuss without really going along with General MacArthur's ideas.

Alice: I say, this is a peculiar country, isn't it? Tell me one other thing before I go. Mr. Martin said that the future of this country was at stake now and that if America was to be saved Congress must do it. You don't really believe that, do you?

Hatter: Oh, no, child. I'm not that mad.

EXPENSIVE POLITICS

SO EXPENSIVE has ppolitical campaigning become that a man of limited means can no longer accept nomination and remain independent of those seeking to contribute to his campaign fund in return for possible favors.

Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa says a nominee who lacks extensive private means must seek "some source of heavy contribution." This makes it difficult for an elected official to exercise independent judgment in actions affecting the interests of the contributor.

Both House and Senate have committees inquiring into campaign expenditures during the recent congressional elections. The House wants to know how much was spent in electing its 435 members. The Senate would like to determine the total for the 33 Senate races last Fall.

It is asserted that in all but a few races the statutory limits were exceeded. A candidate for a seat in the House is limited to expenditures of $5,000 in a campaign, and a senatorial candidate to $25,000 as a maximum.

Both totals are completely unrealistic in this era of highly competitive campaigning. As unrealistic limitations always encourage evasions, the question is whether ceilings should not be lifted to a more practicable level.

NEW SPENCE BILL

IN 1949 Rep. Brent Spence, Kentucky Democrat, threw into the congressional hopper an "economic stability act" denounced by many as a blueprint for national socialism. It would have given the federal government wide latitude to go into business. The Spence bill withered on the bush.

Now the Kentucky solon is attacking from another angle. He would have the government "assist the provision of housing and community facilities required in connection with the national defense." His proposal would give the President authority to construct housing and the services for housing in areas where he found these inadequate.

This bill would authorize not only government housing, but schools, day-care centers for children whose mothers were away from home, hospitals, movies, libraries, together with public utilities, sewers, streets, police stations, fire centers and other facilities.

Under the provisions of this bill the government could build a town or a city wherever it pleased. It is safe to predict that Congress will give this bill, as it did the original Spence measure, careful scrutiny. It could be the means of foisting socialism upon the country by subterfuge.

Season is here when it is difficult to decide whether the dandelions in the front yard or the vegetables in the rear should receive first attention.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

One of the unnoted phases of the MacArthur dismissal is the danger that he faced from a Russian lend-lease policy that could have made our position in the Pacific untenable. This has to do with a lend-lease operation by which the Russians planned to provide the Chinese Communists with a jet-propelled armament and a large submarine force.

It was the United States that established it as proper international procedure for a neutral nation to supply a belligerent with armaments in time of war and yet remain neutral. This was done in 1940, when the United States exchanged American destroyers for bases in British territory. By this transaction, the United States, a neutral, assisted Great Britain, a belligerent. In Lord Lothian's letter, dated Sept. 2, 1940, the British leased us some bases "freely and without consideration," while in Cordell Hull's letter of the same date, appears:

"In consideration of the declarations above quoted, the government of the United States will immediately transfer to his majesty's government fifty United States Navy destroyers generally referred to as the twelve hundred-ton type.'

The lend-lease act was passed on March 11, 1941. The United States did not become a belligerent by act of Congress until Dec. 8, 1941. Therefore, at the time of the passage of the lend-lease act, the United States was neutral. In World War I, the United States took the position that as a neutral, she would sell her wares to any belligerent that could come here to get them and could pay for them.

However, in World War II, President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins devised a novelty which made it possible for a neutral nation to supply a belligerent and yet remain neutral. The exact words of this law are important at this stage:

"(1) To manufacture in arsenals, factories, and shipyards under their jurisdiction, or otherwise procure, to the extent to which funds are made available therefor, or contracts are authorized from time to time by the congress, or both, any defense article for the government of any country whose defense the president deems vital to the defense of the United States.

"(2) To sell, transfer title to, exchange, lease, lend, or otherwise dispose of, to any such government any defense article. . . ."

Few restrictions were placed upon the President:

"(B) The terms and conditions upon which any such foreign government receives any aid authorized under subsection; (A) shall be those which the President deems satisfactory, and the benefit to the United States may be payment or repayment in kind or property, or any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory."

Under the terms of the American lend-lease act, it is permissible for Soviet Russia to remain neutral in our Korean war, yet to supply Soviet China with all the arms required, including jet-propelled planes and submarines. In fact, the United States has no grounds for protesting even the employment of Russian experts by the Chinese Communists in the war against the United States. For this is what the lend-lease act has to say on this subject:

Paraguay is alleged to have paid five cents for membership in the United Nations. Further evidence that a nickel doesn't buy much these days.

Tass, Moscow's mouthpiece, says it is not true Soviet troops are massing in Manchuria. Perhaps they will march non-stop to Korea.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

QUINT HESITATED, shrinking from what he must say to the young drover who was asking for Becky's hand. "She has no one of kin. And when my wife and I took her to live with us we were unthinkingly lax in not taking into account her youth—and her innocence." He picked up a glass paperweight from his desk, turned it over and over in his hands. But even with his eyes on it he could see Michael Duffy stiffening in his chair. "She was seduced by a young man in this neighborhood. She had a child last fall—it died." He put the paperweight back on the desk.

Michael Duffy sprang to his feet. "Where is the skunk? Tell me—I'll kill him!"

Quint shook his head. "No. That would only bring it all back to the girl. And I've reasons of my own for claiming the privilege of dealing with the—skunk. Leave it to me—and the proper time. It makes no difference with your feeling toward Becky? That is what I must know."

When the young drover did not answer at once Quint thought he was weighing it. But then he spoke and it was a little thickly and Quint knew he had had first to control his emotions. "Poor little lass—only difference, sir, is that I've got to be more good to her!"

"Have you spoken to her of—marriage?"

"Well, not straight out, but she knows all right what I'm thinkin'. Got to go back east with a hundred head—my partner's got 'em herded now back in Cold Spring—then I'm through. I figure to buy me a wagon and team and get back this way, come fall. Then if Miss Becky's ready we'll go on to Ohio. We'll find a preacher 'round somewhere to tie us. With your consent, sir, I'll go now and tell her."

Again Quint put his hand out to the young man. "Just one warning. Whatever promises you make to Becky, live up to them." Young Duffy looked at him a little questioningly but Quint did not explain the bitterness he had let into his voice. He finished, "You'll doubtless find her in the kitchen. Go to her."

Becky was in the kitchen. As the young man appeared Jennet nudged Sarah. "We'd better look at that setting hen," and Sarah followed her out into the yard. When they came back Becky was alone, standing, transfixed, in the middle of the room, gazing into space with wide eyes.

"I'm agoing to be wed," she said, scarcely above a whisper.

"Becky! Say 'going,' not 'agoing.'"

Becky shook her head. "It doesn't make any difference now how I say words." With that, and moving as if she were deep in a dream, she went out of the room.

Jennet had wheedled her uncle into giving Becky a "fashionable" wedding. He agreed to drive with her and Becky to Buffalo Village—to Sam Pratt's store where there was merchandize suitable for a bride-to-be.

For a long time Quint had shunned going to the Buffalo village. He was well aware of the many there who questioned his loyalty. He knew where it lay—his maimed arm attested to it—but he saw it as his own affair how he exercised it.

Quint left the girls in Sam Pratt's Emporium and directed his steps toward the tavern next to the smithy. A half-dozen men were standing at the bar. A few nodded toward him, coldly, and then went on with their talk.

It was about Cyrus Caton, and they spoke with excitement. After a moment or so one came up to where Quint stood, a glass in his hand. He had heard? Plainly the speaker was seizing an opportunity to tell him the whole story. Of how Cy Caton had crossed the river with a company of riflemen to clear the border across of any left who were inimical to the peaceful pursuits on this side. Yes, sirree, he'd led the company himself. But down near Chippewa they'd been surprised by some British troops and taken prisoners, Cy with them. "And what d'you think? Four days later back he is, here in the Buffalo village!" On the way in small boats to Fort George the prisoners had overcome the British officers in charge of the little convoy, seized oars and rowed to the American shore. Now it was the British officers who were prisoners at Fort Niagara.

"Cy fought a sergeant twice his size, single-handed, took his sword away from him," finished the narrator, proudly. Then he looked sharply at Quint. "What do you say to that?"

"A very brave act," said Quint quietly. He remembered Cyrus Caton's absurd figure at the head of the ranks of militia, that Inspection Day. Perhaps courage wasn't measured by a man's height and brawn.

"Guess it calls for free drinks for you fellows," said the barman. But his glance going over them did not include Quint.

Quint set down his glass, paid for his drink, and went out of the tavern.

At the Emporium Jennet had chosen the cloth she wanted, some bright ribbon for trimming and a few lengths of lace. She wasn't wholly satisfied with what Mr. Pratt had had to show her, and he had told her a little brusquely that it was the best he could supply.

"Our womenfolks here aren't dolling up much, these days." He gave her an accusing look.

"This is for a trousseau," Jennet answered coldly.

Through an open door at the back of the store she could see into Mrs. Pratt's parlor where she and Aunt Rhoda had drunk tea the day of the inspection. That had been a bore, but before it had been the moment of meeting Peter on the path near the embankment. Then she remembered her anger at Erron that day. She said quickly, "We'll take this, please. And this . . ."

He was measuring off the yards she needed when Quint came in. He gave Quint a mere nod and went on with his measuring. Quint offered no word.

But as he wrapped up the parcel, Sam Pratt spoke.

"A trousseau, the young lady says. I suppose it'll be a fine wedding, other side of the river."

"The wedding and the place where it will be held is a private affair, Mr. Pratt," Quint answered smoothly. Only the whiteness around his mouth showed his anger. "How much do I owe you?"

He paid out the money, picked up the purchase and motioned to Jennet and Becky to go with him out of the shop. Becky's face had a bewildered look—at the moment she was not certain whether it was she or Jennet for whom the trousseau was to be made, but Jennet wore her haughtiest manner as she walked out.

It left her, however, as they started homeward. She burst out, "I wish I'd never gone into his store! He looked at me so hard, Uncle Quint. As if—as if I were something different! I'm never coming to the Buffalo village again!"

"She is suspect, too," thought Quint, with a deepening of the bitterness always in him of late. She must, perforce, share his chosen isolation.

She and Becky fell to work at once on the materials they had bought, cutting them into dresses and undergarments. Pieces of cloth were strewn over the kitchen and parlor, pins and spools of thread.

She gave no sign of any envy of Becky, yet sometimes it sprang up in her to mingle with the little empty ache in her heart. Her hand would rest on her work—it would be so very exciting if she were making this trousseau for herself! But she never let herself think more than that. She was mostly preoccupied in nursing her indignation at Erron.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

General Ridgway will have to sit for some new pictures. In his old ones his mouth is open like he might be giving an opinion on something.

How we used to joke about the Russians with their "political commissars" assigned to the field armies. . . until we found we have them, but ours don't leave Washington.

When MacArthur wanted to meet Mao in the field to talk armistice. . . .that was political. When he wanted to bomb the Commy concentrations in Manchuria. . .that was political. When he was bounced. . .that was necessary.

But no one can say we don't get fast action. Sam Rayburn no more than got through saying we were in terrible danger of fresh invasion from Manchuria than MacArthur, who wanted to bomb the potential invaders, was yanked.

Sam's apparent suggestion for meeting the threat was pass the Universal Military Training bill. MacArthur's was the more direct and the most quickly rejected.

But it's nice to know that Europe is relieved. It also was relieved during Chamberlain's day.

DIET AND HEALTH

This Problem Upsets Both Parents and Their Children

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AS a general rule, the child of three should be dry by night as well as by day, yet by no means all children achieve this degree of bladder control at an early age. At least one out of 20 fails to do so by the age of five and many may still suffer from bedwetting at a much later date. In these cases, the condition is known as enuresis.

Such children are especially in need of understanding and sympathy. It is therefore doubly unfortunate that parents nag or punish the child, so that by degrees he not only becomes sullen and morose but loses all hope of correcting a situation which is as unpleasant for him as for his parents.

Complete Study

It does not seem that there is just one single cause for this condition. When it develops, there is need for complete study of the child so that the exact cause may be found and eliminated. In some few cases, there may be some abnormal condition of the urinary tract which contributes to the disorder. It seems that one outstanding fact about children who have enuresis is that they sleep very soundly. Some spasm of the bladder muscles may also be present. It would thus appear that treatment which will overcome this spasm of the muscles and prevent deep sleep may result in great improvement, if not a complete cure.

Such drugs as ephedrine and atropine seem to help overcome the bladder muscle spasm, and ephedrine may combat the deep sleep. However, before these drugs are employed, doctors usually try other simple methods. Of course, any infection in the urinary tract should be corrected. Increasing the intervals between the periods of emptying the bladder during the day will help to make the bladder muscle relax.

Colored Stars

A calendar might be kept on which the successful dry nights are marked with colored stars. This will help the child to concentrate on successes rather than failures. Rewards may be given when the bed is dry for a week. Of course, no type of punishment should be permitted. The child should be trained to have the bowel emptied thoroughly at night before retiring. He may be allowed to read in bed for a half hour before going to sleep. Immediately before going to sleep he should empty the bladder.

If this treatment does not produce a cure, treatment with atropine and ephedrine may be attempted. However, the dose of these drugs must be sufficient to produce the desired results. During this period of drug treatment, the youngster must be kept under observation by the physician, so that any signs of excessive dosage may be immediately noted.

Some children may be treated by stretching of the bladder. Of 16 youngsters treated in this way, two were cured and eight gradually improved.

It would appear from this study that bedwetting is not just an emotional or psychological disturbance, although such factors may contribute to its occurrence.

A man who sells old age annuities for one of the big New York insurance companies searches the "business and finance" pages of all the papers assiduously for photographs of young executives who have secured promotions or assumed new posts. He has these photographs expertly retouched to make the prospects look like codgers of eighty or eight-five, and mails the resultant works of art to said prospects' homes, attaching his business card, and a note reading, "What are you going to do to make life secure for this old man?"

Does the system work? He's sold more old age insurance than any other three solicitors in the agency combined.

Expect Congress to Cut Tax Boost 25 Per Cent

Symington Gets Mention For RFC Administrator

WASHINGTON—Chances are that Congress won't approve President Truman's full request for $10 billion in new taxes, despite the administration's willingness to postpone a second installment demand for an additional $6.5 billions.

Congressional tax experts say that Mr. Truman probably will get only about $7.5 billion in new levies instead of his proposed $10 billion boost.

There is strong sentiment on Capitol Hill for chopping down the chief executive's request for $4 billion in new personal income taxes. The proposed $6 billion hike in corporate and excise levies also may be cut somewhat.

W. Stuart Symington

Treasury Secretary John Snyder didn't bolster the administration's position any when he announced that the government will end the year with a $3 billion surplus instead of a deficit.

* * * *

● SYMINGTON—Washington observers believe the White House was sending up a trial balloon to determine public and Capitol Hill reaction when a story was "leaked out" recently that W. Stuart Symington might be given the job of reorganizing the much-abused Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mr. Truman, these observers figure, wanted to give special significance to his proposal to replace the five-man board of directors with a single RFC administrator.

Presumably, the White House thought that the name of such a well-known and well-liked administrator as Symington would enhance Congress' reception of the idea, as well as gain public support for it.

Symington, now chairman of the National Security Resources Board, is a close friend of the chief executive and has an excellent record on the jobs he has done in Washington during the past six years.

Now, it looks as if Symington may get an even tougher assignment than his past roles.

● DRAFT—Congress has been debating for two months, both on and off the floor, the age at which a boy matures. The argument has been the storm center of the new draft bill involving 18-year-olds.

However, none of the congressional debate summed up the issue as neatly as did Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey the other day. The Selective Service director put it this way:

"Boys mature about three years earlier than their parents think they do and a couple years later than they themselves think they do."

Five Ladies Of Congress Chided

● FOOD PRICES—Rep. Clinton McKinnon (D), California, believes he has found a skeleton in the closet of the five Republican congresswomen who lugged market baskets onto the House floor recently to demonstrate how food prices have increased since 1919.

The demonstration, designed to show how much the dollar has declined in buying power since then, was staged by Reps. Marguerite S. Church of Illinois, Cecil M. Harden of Indiana, Katharine St. George of New York, Ruth Thompson of Michigan and Frances P. Bolton of Ohio.

However, McKinnon says the ladies could have done a more effective job if they had voted for the Defense Production Act last July. McKinnon complains that they failed to support the measure despite the fact that it might have trimmed down food costs by curbing commodity market speculation.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

ANOTHER GREAT DEBATE

Pending General MacArthur's full presentation of his views, a minority of editors reserves opinion as to how public opinion finally will devide on the policy disagreements betwee the administration and MacArthur. But majority editorial opinion now is that a large popular majority will favor continuing efforts to keep the Korean war localized; though most of this majority feels there will be increasing popular demand for more definite and vigorous UN policies in Korea. Many editors fear that partisan politics and personalities will delay overlong a clarifying of issues in this debate.

ATLANTA Journal (Dem.): "General MacArthur's removal precipitates an even greater debate on American foreign policy and military strategy than the one which has been in progress for more than a year. . . . His views will command worldwide attention. . . . President Truman's address to the nation . .. is not likely to change many opinions in the controversy now raging . . . . It did give the President an opportunity to restate his case before the people to whom he is responsible. . . . Only time can tell the final result of this debate."

CHATTANOOGA Times (Ind.-Dem.): "Once the nation has purged itself of the emotionalism generated by General MacArthur's recall, sober consideration of the alternatives open to us is certain to rally ever-increasing public support to the policy laid down so clearly by Preseidnt Truman. . . . We seek honorable settlements without appeasement. We will not be responsible for visiting the awful catastrophe of total war upon the world, but neither the hope of avoiding it not the fear of the consequences will deter our stand against aggression."

ST. PAUL Dispatch (Ind.): "General MacArthur wants to fight a preventive war in Asia; he believes that Russian aggression can be checkmated by defeating it in the Far East. The Dispatch has believed that to get deeply involved in war on that continent would be to fall into Stalin's trap, and that the showdown in the world conflict must come in Western Europe. . . . But MacArthur's ideas have been stated only in fragmentary fashion or second hand through other people. The time is now here when he should put his case before the nation. . . . If he is right . . . this sould be decided by the process of reasoned debate."

SALT LAKE CITY Tribune (Ind.): "Unhappily, the case is now so shrouded with partisan politics and emotional fog that it will be difficult to clear the air for a long time. . . . A full-dress debate is in the offing over the fundamental foreign policy issue of Asia vs. Europe—or, as it likely will turn out to be 'world war now' vs. 'appeasement of Communists.' Out of it may come a synchronizing of the military and diplomatic viewpoints. . . . A third party may yet be heard from. If the Communists launch a full-scale Spring offensive, they may make academic this phase of the Great Debate."

CHARLOTTE (N.C.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Now, as never before, the American people will understand what the Great Debate has been all about . . . . The Administration's military policy has not been set by Harry Truman. It has been set by such men as General Marshall, General Eisenhower, General Bradley, Admiral Sherman and General Vandenberg . . whose integrity has never been challenged, whose collective military experience exceeds that of General MacArthur and who, because they have not isolated tnemselves for 15 years in one remote theater, are better able to keep the whole global military picture in proper perspective."

* * *

ST. PAUL Pioneer Press (Ind.): "There is military authority on both sides. . . . The weight of military authority is against General MacArthur. For the Administration policy of keeping our powder dry for the showdown in Europe is no mere civilian caprice. . . . But General MacArthur thinks differently, and it would be presumptuous of laymen to say out of hand that he is wrong. The merits of the controversy . . . can be settled by letting General MacArthur have his day in the court of public opinion. Then reasonable men and women can come to their conclusions on the basis of all the knowable facts."

WASHINGTON Star (Ind.): "Documents released by the White House make it clear that the administration has tried to silence or censor, not only General MacArthur, but all of our military and diplomatic representatives. The intent was to prevent them from saying anything inconsistent with our national policy, and while there are obvious reasons for this, the effect is to stifle 'full and vigorous debate' . . . for it means that no official in active military or diplomatic service will be permitted to express his views if he happens to disagree with administration policy."

LOSES 50 LBS. Reducing with Rennel

Mrs. C. A. Gravier, 2028 Broadstone, Toledo, Ohio writes: "I heard about Rennel through a friend and decided to try it. After using 2 bottles I weighed myself and found that I had lost 10 lbs. Now I have taken Rennel for 3 months and my weight has decreased from 220 lbs. to 170 lbs. I look better and feel better. Nicest of all I did not have to starve myself to lose weight."

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid Rennel at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennel.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

The long-range shrewdness of Soviet diplomacy in the field of international relations that is supposed to be founded upon faith in a pledged word was brought into focus again today.

As on several occasions in recent months the key point was Iran, the internally-troubled, oil-saturated stretch of desert and wasteland that forms a bridge between East and West.

Rioting at the Abadan oil fields, which resulted in the death of at least 14 persons, including two Britons, brought immediate repercussions from London and opened up a vista of potential danger that brought immediate shudders to the entire Middle East.

For British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison announced that Britain would not hesitate to send her Persian Gulf fleet into action if the Iranian government is unable to restore and maintain order.

Ad this sharp warning recalled that Iran signed a treaty with neighboring Russia as far back as 1921 providing for entry of Soviet troops in the event of intervention by any third power.

AT THE TIME, the treaty seemed a substantial and constructive one. World War I had ended, and newly - established Communist Russia was engaged in building up a new nation on the shambles of the departed Czarist regime.

It seemed logical and proper for the Soviets to conclude bilateral treaties with their nearest neighbors. Virtually no one suspected that an entirely new situation would have arisen 30 years later.

Thus this three decades old treaty is the dominant factor in the Middle East today and the cause of greatest apprehension in European capitals.

For many months, the supposedly - suppressed Communist Tudeh Party of Iran has been stirring up trouble, particularly in Azerbaijan province of Northern Persia bordering on Soviet Russia.

The activities of this illegal organization have been aided immeasurably by extremist religious groups which have carried violence even into Tehran, normally the most quiet city of the kingdom since an attempt upon the life of Shah Riza Mohamed Pahlevi was made some time ago.

The Shah's best and strongest statesman, Pro-Western Premier Ali Razmara, was slain a few weeks ago, and the assassination of his close friend and collaborator, Abdul Hamid Zanaeh of the University of Tehran, followed soon afterward.

In both cases, fanatical Islamic societies were held responsible.

BUT IN VIEW of the disordered conditions which prevail throughout the country, it is entirely possible that Communist Tudehs, playing upon sensitive religious feelings, inspired both acts.

It is obvious that Russia welcomes and no doubt encourages disorder in Iran. A reasonably valid excuse to move troops into the country would favor Joseph Stalin's ambition to control the Iranian oil fields.

There is more than one historic precedent for the dangerous situation that now prevails in the Middle East.

It is simple to recall the subterfuge used by Adolf Hitler in his invasion of Poland, the act of madness which started World War II.

Nazi agents in Polish uniforms staged a number of supposed "raids" across the German frontier, allegedly terrorizing the local population.

Hitler got up before his rubber-stamp Reichstag on the morning of Sept. 1, 1939, anunced that he could not and would not tolerate what he termed "Macedonian" conditions on the German-Polish border and sent his Nazi legions rolling and rumbling into action.

The rest is history.

Obviously, Morrison, new at the task of being foreign secretary and the British cabinet as a whole are not eager to create a situation that would give the Russians a chance to enter Iran on a presumption of legality.

Yet British lives have been lost and vast British financial holdings are at stake. Iran itself is preparing to nationalize the oil fields. This could stave off Soviet intervention and a way may be found to compensate and placate the British shareholders involved.

But it is a tinderbox. And a tinderbox immersed in inflammable oil, to make matters worse.

The show, as was the case last year, is being directed by Truman Eberly, high school music department head. Special dramatics instruction is being given by Mrs. Clark Will with added special assistance from Clayt Chalfin.

George Fishpaw is to serve as interlocutor.

End men for the show will be Frank Marion, Charles Richards, William Wyatt, Dr. William Rickey, Dr. Richard Samuel and John Heiskell.

Soloists will include Richard Funk, Richard Boerner, Charles Weidinger, Maynard Matz, Jim Mowery, Paul Hang, C. O. Leist and the Rev. Robert Weaver.

Instrumental specialties will be offered by Jack Heeter, Ray Barnhart, Dr. Ray Carroll, Richard Morris, Forest Croman, Mowery, Leist and Wyatt.

THE "SINAWIK (Kiwanis spelled backward) orchestra" is to be composed of Bertus Bennett, Dr. David Goldschmidt, Barnhart, Samuel, Croman, Wyatt, Morris, Funk and Charles Richards.

A special quartet will be comprised of Leist, Weaver, Boerner and Weidinger.

The Kiwanis chorus will be made up of William Ammer, Harold Anderson, Barnhart, Eugene Barthelmas, Harry Barthelmas Jr., Joe Bell, Bennett, Joe Burns, Carroll, Harold Clifton, Virgil Cress, Croman, Ben Gordon, Robert Griffith, Verne Hawkes, Heeter, William Heiskell, J. Wray Henry, Karl Johnson, John Kerns, Winfield Koch, Bill Lanman, Harold Moats, Morris, Sterling Poling, Homer Reber, Elmon Richards, Dr. W. Lloyd Sprouse, Dwight Steele, Frank Wantz, Roscoe Warren, Paul White and Clifford Beaver.

Special stunts will be directed by Goldschmidt and Clay Vaughan will handle lighting.

The pit orchestra, as was the case last year, will be made up of volunteers from the local high school orchestra. They include Larry Thornton, Sally Cochran, Bob McClure, Donna Mitchell, Betty McClure, James Bartholomew, Theresa Hill, Marjorie Rinehart, Phyllis Dresbach, Dona Kerns, Don Metzger, Gene Kerns, Charles Magill, Gordon Blake and Petty Shellhammer. The latter also will serve as special pianist for various numbers.

In addition to these roles, nearly all of the Kiwanians have been assigned to special duties on business committees to handle ticket sales, ushering, talent selection, programs, and stage properties.

Saltcreek Youth Finishing Course

A Saltcreek Township man this Spring will complete the final phase of training in Ohio State university to become a veterinary.

He is Robert Strous, son of Superintendent Harold Strous of Saltcreek school, who is to be graduated by the university this June.

Strous is a member of the Phi Zeta honorary veterinarian society on the campus, a group made up of the upper 25 percent of the school. He studied in Ohio university and University of Wisconsin before transferring into OSU to complete his work.

Ashville Postal Service Expanded

The Ashville Postoffice building underwent considerable improvement over the weekend with a complete new front being added to the interior of the office.

The new arrangement provides for several new lock boxes, most of which are over-size for the convenience of local business and professional men.

The new arrangement will also be more convenient for the postal employes, enabling them to give more efficient service with a minimum of effort. Stanley L. Smith is the local postmaster and Robert Welsh and Doyle Calvert are permanent employes.

BE PREPARED

April is Railroad Month in the National Cub Scout Program.

During this month, over 800,000 Cub Scouts . . . 100,000 Den Leaders . . . and more than a million parents and other adults interested in the Cub Scout program, will place special emphasis on an earlier and a better understanding of American railroads — how they operate, how they serve the people in peace and war.

Cub Scouts, as future Boy Scouts, are trained for fulfillment of Scouting's famous motto — BE PREPARED. An understanding of the indispensable service performed by American railroads is of major importance in their preparation for the responsibilities of adult citizenship which they will inherit . . . for the railroads of America are indeed the lifeline of America.

Today, BE PREPARED is vital for all of us. The railroads themselves are and always have been among the first to accept this challenge . . . to BE PREPARED to serve, no matter what demands are placed upon them in peacetime or in time of emergency. The Norfolk and Western alone has spent and authorized more than $157,000,000 since World War II for improvements all over the railroad . . . to BE PREPARED.

The nation is proud of its Cub Scouts and the splendid things they stand for. The Norfolk and Western salutes them for Railroad Month and their other excellent programs, which are training them to grow up as more capable leaders and finer American citizens.

Sokolsky's

"(3) To test, inspect, prove, repair, outfit, recondition, or otherwise to place in good working order, to the extent to which funds are made available therefore, or contracts are authorized from time to time by the Congress, or both, any defense article for any such government, or to procure any or all such services by private contract."

General Douglas MacArthur, as commander of Americans in war—even if they are called United Nations troops, they are Americans—recognized the danger to his men and the untenability of our position if Russia, as a neutral, could lend - lease jet-propelled planes and submarines to the Chinese, who could thus bottle up our fleet and destroy our men, particularly were we caught in a simultaneous action in Asia and Europe. This he tried to convey to the authorities in Washington without success. His letter to Congressman Joe Martin brought the problem into the open.

Old - fashioned international lawyers followed the precedents which had been developed by experience over the centuries. The innovators during the New Deal abhorred precedents and established new procedures, which, in themselves, have become precedents. This one is blowing up in our faces at this moment. In the MacArthur controversy, this is an important factor.

Trio Of Local Nurses To Take CD Study Course

A trio of Circleville nurses plan to attend a two-day training course in Civilian Defense this week in Chillicothe.

Planning to attend the sessions are Miss Margaret Goode, Mrs. Fern Schwarz and Mrs. Helen Pickens.

The training course is designed to cope with atomic warfare, a condensed first aid course which the three nurses will be expected to repeat to other local nurses in local training classes.

Miss Goode is to represent Berger hospital during the course, Mrs. Schwarz is to represent Circleville Civilian Defense and Mrs. Pickens will represent the county health office. The sessions will be held Thursday and Friday in Chillicothe Armory.

OPS Schedules Meeting Here For April 24

Retailers in Pickaway County are being urged by the Office of Price Stabilization to attend a meeting on Tuesday, April 24, at 7:30 p. m. in Court-Main restaurant, Circleville.

Purpose of the gathering is to discuss the new amendment No. 2 to the ruling effecting ceiling prices on certain consumer goods (Reg. 7), according to Edward F. Wagner, district OPS director.

Commodities included in the original order affected merchandise ordinarily offered for sale in apparel and shoe stores, many items sold in furniture and floor covering stores and more than 75 percent of the volume handled by department stores.

To a considerable degree the new amendment broadens the list of merchandise now covered by percentage markup regulations.

Especially interested in the explanation of the new amendment will be dealers in hardware, jewelry, sporting goods, luggage, drugs and musical instruments, china and glassware.

This group is affected more by the new amendment.

Samuel H. Rowe, business analyst in the consumer goods division of the Columbus district OPS, will be the principal speaker at the meeting. John Magill, Circleville Chamber of Commerce secretary, will serve as chairman.

Pricing charts for dealers who come under Regulation 7 and the amendments must be filed with the District OPS at 68 East Gay street, Columbus, by April 30.

Will W. Fischer Gives Banquet

Will W. Fischer and Son of Ashville, buyers and sellers of vegetables and fruits for the last 16 years in Ashville and Columbus, gave a banquet Friday night in the Ashville Knights of Pythias Hall for over 100 of their vegetable and fruit growers over the state and for their buyers.

Object of the gettogether was to iron out problems that confront the buyer as well as the grower and to create a closer relationship between buyer and grower. Professor Scott of Ohio State university served as moderator during the roundtable discussion.

The local firm, which maintains both Ashville and Columbus offices, employs some 25 local men the year around with extra help added during the Summer season.

BUCS WIN FIRST CONTEST

Major League Outfits Awaiting 1951 Openers

NEW YORK, April 17—Baseball prances into its jubilee year today and with a half-hearted vote of confidence from the weatherman, more than 200,000 fans are expected to welcome the game "home" at eight major league ball parks.

Appropriately, the season begins as last season ended—hectic, full of fight and with more than just a share of confusion. The promise is for more of same in both leagues.

It is the 75th anniversary season for the National League and the 50th for the American.

One glaring development must preface the whole show. That is the transformation of the Pittsburgh Pirates under the leadership of miracle man Branch Rickey. The last-place Bucs of 1950 are currently in first place in the National League by virtue of their 4 to 3 inaugural triumph over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday.

ACTUALLY, this was the only game scheduled in the league, but it still looks good.

The World Champion New York Yankees, whose opener in Washington against the Senators was rained out yesterday, begin shooting for their third straight American League flag today agaainst the team that's always favored to win it—the Boston Red Sox.

And the National League Champion Philadelphia Phillies return to the scene of their last-day pennant triumph of 1950 to open up. It will be the Phils vs. the Dodgers at Ebbets Field.

Fireballing Vic Raschi, the Yankees 21-game winning righthander of last season, is slated to face the power-packed Bosox while Lefty Bill Wight, the erstwhile White-Socker, is expected to hurl for Boston before a crowd of more than 50,000 in Yankee Stadium.

Philadelphia will send 20-game winning Robin Roberts to the hill against Brooklyn's Carl Erskine, a last minute replacement for the arm-ailing Don Newcombe.

The New York Giants, who along with the Dodgers, are rated ahead of the Whiz Kids in the pre-season estimates, open up in Boston with Larry Jansen facing Vern Bickford of the Braves.

Other National League openers find St. Louis at Pittsburgh, where Cardinal Rookie Tom Poholsky will make his major league mound debut against Redbird-killer Murray Dickson and Cincinnati at Chicago where Ken Raffensberger pitches for the Reds against Frank Hiller.

IN THE AMERICAN League, a gala opening is anticipated in Briggs Stadium when the Detroit Tigers face the Cleveland Indians. This atural pits 23-game winner Bob Lemon on the mound for the Tribe against Prince Hal Newhouser.

The Senators and Athletics play the first night game of the year in Philadelphia with Bob Kuzava going against Bob Shantz.

Missing from the dugout will be venerable Connie Mack, baseball's grand old man, who turned over the managership of the athletics to Jimmy Dykes after holding it for half a century.

The Chicago White Sox, who had a mighty impressive Spring, open in St. Louis with Billy Pierce pitching against the Brownie pitching staff, a fellow by the name of Ned Garver.

In addition to Dykes, four other managers make their debut today. They are Marty Marion of the Cardinals, Al Lopez of the Indians, Paul Richards of the White Sox and Charley Dressen of the Dodgers.

Baseball 1951 begins under the shadow of possible all-out mobilization and under the leadership of Lame Duck Commissioner A. B. Chandler, who has been voted out of office as of next April when his contract runs out.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN, who was to have thrown out the first ball at yesterday's postponed Yankee-Senator game, will get his opportunity again Friday in the afternoon part of a day-night doubleheader between the two teams.

The Pittsburgh-Cincy opener in the Queen City attracted 30,441 fans who shivered their way through 40-degree temperatures and snow flurries in Crosley Field.

Lefties Cliff Chambers and Bill Werle combined to pitch the nine-hit victory for the Pirates with Chambers garnering the win.

Stringbean Ewell Blackwell was tagged for all the Pittsburgh tallies, one run in the second and three in the third before being lifted from the game.

Few Have Braved Weather, Water To Play Golf

Only a few of the more hardy local golfers have braved the cold weather and soggy turf so far to get at their favorite sport.

Ed Amey, manager of the Pickaway Country Club course, said Tuesday the local fairways are "very wet" and very few golfers have tried them out because of the weather.

"Our lawnmower has been mired down for about a week now," Amey pointed out. "We haven't been able to drag it out."

The manager added that none of the county schools has accepted the club's invitation to play on the course yet, the weather and transportation named as two of the biggest factors.

Athletes in county schools have been invited to use the course free of charge, in the same manner Circleville high school golfers use it, as long as they are properly supervised. Several schools have indicated they plan to take advantage of the offer.

Amey said Sunday's high winds and cool weather kept all but the most hardy enthusiasts from the local course.

No Player War Between Canada And U.S. Seen

PHILADELPHIA, April 17 — There will be no professional football war between the United States and Canadian leagues.

Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner, made that clear yesterday on reports from the West Coast that the Canadian league planned to sign or had already signed more than a dozen NFL players.

"If they don't want to play here, let them play in Canada," Bell said. "The only thing I dislike about it is that some of these players are breaking either their contract or their option clauses with NFL clubs."

Among the players reported as signing or about to sign with a Canadian club were Jack Nix, San Francisco 49er end; Jim Hardy, quarterback, and Bob Shaw, end of the Chicago Cardinals.

Ex-OSU Gridder Faces Trouble

COLUMBUS, April 17 — William Peterson, former Ohio State and John Carroll football quarterback, will be court-martialed by the Ohio National Guard for being absent without leave.

The former Cleveland Cathedral Latin high school star is confined to barracks at Lockbourne Army Air Base where the 166th Fighter - Interceptor Squadron went on active duty Feb. 1.

A spokesman for the 166th said Peterson has been AWOL since Feb. 1 and will face a special court-martial at Baer Field, Fort Wayne.

Tennis Tourney Is Scheduled

WILBERFORCE, April 17 — The 34th annual championship tournament of the American Tennis Association will be held Aug. 20-25 at State College, Wilberforce.

At the same time the college announced that tennis courts will be resurfaced to permit all weather play. The decision, the college said, resulted from recommendations by players and ATA officials made when the men's singles championships were rained out at the 32nd annual meet. No champion was ever declared for this event.

Toledo Raceway Awaits Arrival Of Sidewheelers

TOLEDO, April 17—Migration of harness horses from Florida to Toledo will start very soon. With the 31-night meeting slated to start May 12 at the Toledo Fort Miami Raceway, the training program increases in intensity daily.

More than 150 horses have been training at the track for several weeks, but the big stables which did their early training elsewhere are now heading this way and will figure heavily in the big events here.

The C. M. Saunders stable has had eight head quartered here for some time, with George McCarney in charge. Another important bunch of Saunders horses will come in shortly from Georgia, among them the famous trotter Bangaway, with a money earning record of $114,000 in the last two years; Wayaway, crack 2-year-old trotter, and such pacers as Super Hal, Fulisway, Stormy Way, Gander, Thunderclap and Mr. Dean.

Harry Fitzpatrick has a number of candidates for heavy stakes in the shipment of 15 which arrived recently from Florida, and they will be showing their speed as soon as they get acclimated.

ORLANDO STABLES are about ready to start for Fort Miami. Joe O'Brien is shipping 27 head of high class contenders owned by the Milky Way Stable of Rockville Center, Long Island; Carla Lee DeVries of Norwalk, Calif.; B. C. Cruikshank of Halifax, Nova Scotia and others.

Wayne Smart, trainer for the Castleton Farms of Lexington, Ky., will ship 25 head from Orlando, and Harry Powell will soon leave the same area with Harriman's Arden Homestead string.

Delvin Miller, in charge of the Reynolds stable, also is shipping an imposing array from Orlando. Johnny Caton is bringing up 11 head owned by Zettlemeyer and Couden, of Cleveland.

Brain Disorder Fells Buc Hurler

PITTSBURGH, April 17—Bill Pierro, 25-year-old Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher who made his reputation with a sidearm fast ball, battled for his life today in Presbyterian hospital in Pittsburgh.

Brain surgeons said the young hurler is suffering from inflammation of the brain.

Pierro has been placed in isolation by team physician, Dr. Norman Ochsenhirt. The pitcher became ill last Tuesday in Knoxville, Tenn., and was believed the victim of ptomaine poisoning.

Turner Scores Over Beau Jack

PHILADELPHIA, April 17 — Twenty-year-old Gil Turner held the eye of the fistic world today after punching out a unanimous 10-round decision over Former Lightweight Champion Beau Jack in Philadelphia arena.

The Philadelpia battler, registering his 18th straight professional triumph, battered Jack with two-handed volleys, but was unable to land a kayo blow.

Ringsiders gave every round to Turner with the exception of the seventh when the youngster took it easy on orders from his handlers.

Hill Wins Cycle Test In Lebanon

LEBANON, April 17 — Bobby Hill, Columbus cyclist, is the winner of the five-mile race held before 4,000 persons Sunday at Lebanon Raceway.

Tiger Thinlies Ready To Meet Wilmington

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger track team will travel to Wilmington Friday in its first test against a South Central Ohio League member foe.

Tiger cindermen to date have been tested three times, scoring one victory, earning second place in a triangular and losing one meet.

Friday's contest will give the Tiger thinlies a chance to compare themselves with the trackmen from a school which compares in size with Circleville.

In its first meet of the season, the CHS'ers were handed a 75-43 loss by Chillicothe, although later earning a 69-48 win over Lancaster. The Tigers placed in the middle in a triangular with Linden at East, scoring 45 points while East tallied 124 points and Linden succeeded in tallying only 40.

So far, only eight members of the 1951 Tiger track team have brought home first places in individual events.

They are Harold McClarren, 120 and 220-yard low hurdles; John Cockrell, discus and shotput; Gerald Thomas, mile run; Charles Johnson, 440-yard dash; Warren Leist, half-mile run; John Pontius, polevault; Clarence Boyd, highjump; and Dave Coffland, broadjump.

Circleville's mile relay team has brought home two firsts to date. Members of the team are McClarren, Ken Weaver, Thomas and Johnson. Best winning time reported to date was 3:51.6.

Coach Tom Bennett said that a new foe has been added to the Tiger card since the season opener. The locals are to travel to Bexley next Monday.

Redbirds Due To Open Season Against Millers

COLUMBUS, April 17 — The Junior World Champion Columbus Redbirds and pennant-winning Minneapolis will light the 50th birthday candle of the American Association here tonight in a league opener.

Some 14,000 fans, headed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche who will throw out the traditional first ball, converge on the minor leagues' capitol city to see if Manager Harry Walker's Birds can climb out of their southland slump.

Columbus lost ten of 15 exhibition outings this year.

Bird Pitcher Cot Deal, who lost ten of 14 regular games last season, will start against Minneapolis. Dixie Howell will go to the mound for the Millers.

Tiger Golfers Frozen Out

Circleville Tiger golfers were frozen out Monday when they travelled to Westerville for their second match of the season.

Coach Steve Brudzinski said the match with Westerville was called off because of snow and cold weather as the lads prepared to tee off.

The coach said that the boys played several holes with the Westervillers but not in competition. The match is expected to be rescheduled for late May.

Next contest on tap for the locals will be a trip to Chillicothe Friday afternoon for a triangular test against the host squad and Lancaster.

New Local Lions Club Details Its Achievement Hopes

Official Charter Is Given Here

Other Civic Groups Facing Competition

If the Circleville Lions Club's "platform" is followed only halfway, then the two other local civic clubs—Rotary and Kiwanis—will have some stiff competition when annual achievement reports are written.

Announced by the new club's first president, George M. Meyers, the "platform" was given recently when the Lions Club received its charter.

First meeting of the group is slated for noon Tuesday of next week in the club rooms in Circleville Masonic Temple.

Meyers, a local accountant, gave the following pledge on behalf of his club:

1. That the Lions Club is founded to perpetuate in men's hearts a love of our native land, and to talk of, and strive for honesty, reciprocity, and cooperation in business, community betterment and municipal growth.
2. That we are organized that there may flow from good fellowship, mutual help and profit, and that our combined influence may be systematized, directed, and utilized toward the welfare and upbuilding of our own community.
3. That we are free from political entanglements and sectarianism; that we are a brotherhood without secrets; definitely do we aim to practice concretely the Golden Rule.
4. That we will always, conscientiously and loyally, set about to make a better place in which to live, and we will willingly and earnestly join hands with all citizens, or groups of citizens, in all worthy undertakings, were are here to serve.
5. That we cordially invite from, and at the same time extend to all organizations of like kind, character, and purpose, hearty cooperation in achieving the aims for which all Lions stand.
6. To a honest realization of all such aims the Lions Club does now dedicate itself; it has no other cause for existence. Modestly do we hope that some day it may be said of Circleville that it is a better place in which to live, to work, and to play, by virtue of its Lions Club.

As he accepted the charter from Lions District Governor Lawrence Holtsberry, Meyers declared that the new group's motto would be: "L-I-O-N-S—Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nation's Safety."

Officers other than Meyers are: Charles Thompson, first vice-president; Wesley Edstrom, second vice-president; Dale Gardner, third vice-president; Nick Condello, secretary-treasurer; Monty Lambert, tail twister; Dave Block, lion tamer; Everett Funk, Ronald Nau, John Magill and Roy Marshall, directors.

Other charter members are Joe Brink, James Callahan, Myrl Collins, Charles DeVoss, Gene Lindsey, Clarence Radcliffe, George Crum, Robert Griffith, Warren Hill, Regis Kifer, Winfield Koch, Neil Nelson and Azel Laughlin.

Official charter night ceremonies were held last Thursday night in First EUB church service center.

15-Year-Old Girl Commits Suicide

COLUMBUS, April 17 — A 15-year-old girl hung herself Sunday in the bedroom of her home just east of Columbus — apparently because her mother forbade her to go to a movie.

Mrs. Lawrence W. Williamson said her daughter, Bertha, went to her room about 9:20 p. m. A sister, Hazel, found her hanging by a silk scarf looped about her neck and attached to a large nail 10 minutes later.

The Mifflin Township emergency squad administered seven tanks of oxygen to the girl without success.

Bevin died Saturday after a heart attack. The 70-year-old Labor leader had been ill for some time.
